

THE GOLD NUGGET

October 2017

Nominations are open in October for Board Positions. We will need a new Secretary/Treasurer for sure, so consider stepping up to help your Club continue to run smoothly and be the Best Prospecting Club in Denver!

The Prez Sez by Jim Long

October is upon us. The leaves are either falling or have fallen and the nights are colder and the bull elk are just about done bugling. A host of orange clad men and women are migrating to the mountains fairly armed to the teeth in search of Bambi and his larger cousin, the elk. There are fewer prospectors in the water now as it has also gotten a lot colder and snow has already fallen in the high country. Fall will seem short and winter is about to leap upon us.

That being said, there is still plenty of gold out there and you should be out there digging in spite of the weather. Those of us who are a little older will be wishing we could be out more often but the old bones and joints just don't like the cold any longer and the weather changes fire up the old injuries and the arthritis. Growing old is not for sissies and that is a fact, I am here to testify. Aaahhh..., but when I was younger, man I could.....well, shoot, memories are a dime a dozen and war stories can get old in pretty short order, so I try not to tell very many of them anymore. I know a guy who tells the same stories over and over literally from day to day and can't remember tomorrow that he told you the same story today and told you yesterday as well. After a week or three, it can grate on your nerves and I don't want to be like that guy. I could shut him down but I like to keep what few friends I have rather than toss them away. His heart and his intentions are solid gold so everything else is taken in stride.

But for those of you who have slowed down a little, there is probably a goodly amount of time on your hands. Why not take a little of that time and invest it in the well-being of your Club? We are in need of someone to step up to replace our Club Treasurer. This is an excellent opportunity to spend the next year or so getting to know a good many of the other members. After all, nearly everyone buys raffle tickets for the gold nuggets and they will have to come to you to get them. The busy times are at the first part of the meeting and during the break, otherwise, you don't really spend all that much time at the job other than keeping the checkbook straight and filling out the monthly statement for the Board of Directors. Thank goodness for the computer program Excel, as it can make everything so much easier to do. As long as you have a computer, the job isn't all that hard at all. So I hope that someone steps forward and makes that decision to help make a difference.

Elsewhere in this edition of the Newsletter, I wrote about the process of recovering 'micro gold', you know, that little tiny stuff that many of you know is in your pan that is so hard to see and even harder to recover. I am talking about 100 and even the 200 mesh or smaller stuff. I have stressed from day one when I became a voice for many of you that panning is critical to becoming a successful prospector. Oh sure, there are many different kinds of equipment out there that can recover your gold for you if you have the money to spend. And you will probably be happy with it if you can figure out how the manufacture makes it look so easy when they do it and yet, you struggle to get it to work just right. And of course, they will tout the efficiency of their product as to getting 98 or 99% retention of the gold as part of the selling points. But my experience is that many of them result in some serious gold loss and nearly all of them have difficulty in getting that micro gold. But you can get it if you learn to pan and develop your skills to the level that you become confident in that skill. Many people lack that confidence. That is kind of a killer in the art of prospecting. Granted, there is a lot to learn about prospecting to become successful and you never really stop learning for that matter. Besides becoming knowledgeable in geology and geologic occurrences as they relate to gold, you need to have a basic understanding of chemistry as well as physics. Sometimes, a little engineering skill can go a long way as well. Being handy with your hands and quick with your mind are also helpful skills to have. I guess I am trying to say that a good prospector needs to be a jack-of-all-trades and a master of none but the art of panning. When all is said and done, the only way you will get that micro gold is by becoming a good panner. The use of chemicals will get it all but the risk is that it can kill you or potentially ruin your health. So I tried to put the technique down in black and white for your reference to help you understand that you can get more gold than you are getting now, if that is your desire. If not, it makes good reading anyway. I know that the technique I describe is ascribed to by many experienced prospectors as being the best way to get that micro gold. And I hope that it works as well for you as it does me.

Anyway, that is the view from here and I wish you all Good Luck in your endeavors, no matter what they may be!. And until we meet again, keep your sunny sides up and may the bottoms of your pans turn bright with that treasured ‘Yaller Gold’!

The V.P. Corner by “Joe Fortunato

Hello again fellow gold seekers. I was hoping to get over to Clear Creek for a day of prospecting and test panning. I wanted to base this month’s V.P. Corner article on the results of that outing, but I just never could find the time to make it to the creek. I had a plan worked out to describe each location that I tested and the results from that location. Sorry for not following through on that plan this month, but I will get it done for a future newsletter article. One the many things that got in the way of that trip to the creek was the fact that I have spent a lot of time planning another trip to Nevada. I have been texting and talking to a couple of my nugget hunting friends out west. They have racked up four trips to Nevada during the last three weeks, with some good results. I will be heading for Nevada on Oct. 12th. I plan on detecting for six days. I hope the weather cooperates out there, wet ground can be a problem when it comes to metal detecting for gold. The Western States Prospecting Association (the nugget hunting club that I joined in 2016), will be having their Rye Patch outing on Oct. 13,14,and 15. I am hoping to pick up a few more tricks and tips on nugget hunting from some very skilled detectorists that weekend. Of course there is also “Steak Night” on Friday and “Pizza Night” on Saturday. With that said, what I am really looking forward to, is getting out in the desert with my friends and finding some gold nuggets!!! If things work out well, I hope to have enough good stories and pictures to maybe put together another presentation for our club in the future. I will see all of you at the November meeting, until the. May All Your Adventures Be Golden!!! Joe Fortunato Questions or comments call or text m. 303-263-7204

From the Treasurer/Secretary Ledger by Wayne Schomaker

The October Meeting will feature a 9 nugget drawing that will include a nugget of at least 2.8 grams or more. We have another fine specimen from Alaska to auction off.. We will also be giving away numerous door prizes as well. Remember that your chances of winning are better than the Colorado Lottery as there are so many less people participating. Be sure to support your Club and buy lots of tickets. See you all at the up-coming Meeting.

A Miner's Laugh

There was an elderly couple who in their old age noticed that they were getting a lot more forgetful, so they decided to go to the doctor. The doctor told them that they should start writing things down so they don't forget. They went home and the old lady told her husband to get her a bowl of ice cream. "You might want to write it down," she said. The husband said, "No, I can remember that you want a bowl of ice cream." She then told her husband she wanted a bowl of ice cream with whipped cream. "Write it down," she told him, and again he said, "No, no, I can remember: you want a bowl of ice cream with whipped cream." Then the old lady said she wants a bowl of ice cream with whipped cream and a cherry on top. "Write it down," she told her husband and again he said, "No, I got it. You want a bowl of ice cream with whipped cream and a cherry on top." So he goes to get the ice cream and spends an unusually long time in the kitchen, over 30 minutes. He comes out to his wife and hands her a plate of eggs and bacon. The old wife stares at the plate for a moment, then looks at her husband and asks, "Where's the toast?"

Georgetown Loop RR Memorial Weekend Panning Demonstration

On Memorial Day weekend, the Club assisted the City and County of Denver with the gold panning to assist the tourists and other holiday celebrants with panning the gold bags that they buy when they get their train ticket with the mine tour. We had lots of volunteers who helped to process the many people who come through the panning area. The Railroad also provides every customer with a free hot dog, chips and drink, which they enjoy, but the gold panning for many is a major highlight. We get a chance to meet people not only from various parts all over Colorado, but from all over the world as well. Most of these people have never seen raw gold in its natural state and often, those from other parts of the world, though they may have a vague recollection of it from their schooling, they have never experienced anything like it. This is what makes it a lot of fun for us when we help them by showing them the rudimentary technique necessary to pan out gold. Of course, 99% of them will never do it again in their lifetime but they will always have the memory of what they did in Georgetown during their trip. My huge thanks go to Jack Meineke, Steve Miller, Jim Peterson, Angie Yen, Roger Schlenger, Carl Adams and Frank Zahn for all their help to make this event a success. Pres. Long did get a few photos of all the fun!

Highlands Ranch Days Panning Demonstration

The Club participated in the Highlands Ranch Days Festival at the Highlands Ranch Mansion in Highlands Ranch on Sept. 7, 8, and 9. This is the 6th year the Club has participated in this event. The Festival hosts a lot of second and third grade students from various elementary schools throughout the Douglas County District during the first two days and there are a myriad of vendors on hand. The vendors include a Blacksmith, Indian dancers, a live Bird of Prey educational display and demonstration, Indian fry bread, a genuine trapper, a western chuck wagon, civil war enactors with cannon. A petting zoo, a pottery maker, hayrides and a host of other activities for the kids along with our gold panning demonstration. Of course, the gold panning booth is a big draw at the festival and we stay pretty busy. The third day is Saturday and we get mostly families in attendance and often pick up a new member or two who have been wanting to get into small scale mining but didn't know where to go or how to go about it. These panning demos are always a lot of fun and of course, the gold is always 'catch and release' but for many people, it is their first time to see real gold in its raw and natural state and for them to get a feel of how the 'old timers' did it. Our sincere appreciation goes to Jack Meineke, Frank Zahn, Hank Innerfeld, John Olson, Pam Schmitt, Carl Adams, Angie Yen, Mike Hurtado, Ian and Sue Duncanson who volunteered their time to assist the Club in making this a successful event. Pres. Long got a few photos to share as well.

GPR Club Annual Picnic

The Club held our annual picnic at Morse Park in Lakewood on September 17. The event hosted decent weather for this time of year and was fairly well attended. We pretty much had the whole park to ourselves this year since the event was on a Sunday and we managed to avoid all the youth football Leagues which normally create such a parking fiasco. There was lots of food and Pres. Long did the grilling of hamburgers, brats and dogs as usual. Past President Gary Hawley and his wife Cathy were back in town and attended. It was great to see them both and they will be here until the weather turns cold again. Pres. Long took a couple of photos to prove it all happened (although there are some who would say it didn't and it is just fake news.

Mining Museum Wins Two Awards at Denver Show!

The Western Museum of Mining & Industry (WMMI) was the recipient of two major awards at the 2017 Denver Gem & Mineral Show, held this past weekend at the Denver Mart on East 58th Avenue in Denver. This was the fiftieth year for the show, which chose “gold and silver” as its theme, encouraging exhibitors, which included museums, individuals, and clubs, to showcase objects relating to the theme. The museum received the Donna Chirnside Award from the Greater Denver Area Gem and Mineral Council, and the Best Educational Exhibit by an Institution award from the Friends of Mineralogy. WMMI Executive Director Rick Sauers had been planning the museum's exhibit since last year's show. After a lot of thinking and planning, he decided to do a multi-case exhibit on “Gold Mining in Colorado,” provided that the museum could find a contributor to help defray expenses. Gold Resource Corporation stepped up and granted the museum the funds needed to develop the 11-case exhibit. Beginning with “Where Does Gold Come From?” to “Modern Gold Mining,” the exhibit allowed visitors to the show to better understand how gold is discovered, mined, and refined. A combination of well-chosen artifacts, text blocks, photographs, woodcuts, maps, and diagrams brought the story together. Every artifact came from the museum's extensive collection of mining equipment. Assisting in the development of this exhibit were Crystal Peak Design, Don Unger (WMMI's summer intern and current volunteer), museum volunteers Robert Halstead, Mike Lewis, Bob Smith, and John Zeornes, and the Cripple Creek & Victor Gold Mining Company, a subsidiary of Newmont Mining. (Story and photos courtesy of the WMMI)

BlackHawk Prospecting Outing

The Club held its last prospecting outing of the year at the Blackhawk private claim known as Clay County. The outing was well attended and was led by Jack Meineke. The weather was not the greatest for this one and it was a little chilly and wet. But for those hardy souls who don't let a little weather slow them down, there was gold to be found and they found it. This private claim has been sold by the owners to a new owner that we met in the fall of 2016. We have not been able to link up to discuss 2018 outings on this property but we will try to do that this winter. He had no issues with us in 2016 or 2017 but we need to make sure that this relationship will continue as it is a great opportunity for Club members to enjoy digging fairly close to Denver. As usual, we set up high bankers at the end of the day on lower Clear Creek and ran everyone's material for them. Many thanks to Jack Meineke and Bobby Manning for setting them up and staying until everyone was done. Jack managed to take a photo or two.

Hand Panning Micro-fine Gold by Jim Long

Man, how do you do that? I can see the stuff in there but every time I try to pan it out, I lose a ton of it and it just drives me crazy. Do I need to spend $10,000 dollars and get a shaker table or $1000 dollars for a fancy 'guaranteed' wheel or something? The answer is no, not really.

You can get the gold out with a pan but you need to change your attitude about how you go about it and change up your technique. I am talking about fine micro-gold that is often 100 mesh or smaller. If you have been a prospector for any serious length of time, you know what I am talking about. I often warn people that panning is an art you just have to master. There are three kinds of panning really. The first, 'rough panning', is actually the easiest. You do not really have to be too careful, just have the basic technique and take it down to the black sand, then reduce the black sand a little more slowly until you have cut it 50% and save it for the second stage.

The second stage is often called 'finish panning' which refers to taking that last little bit of black sand and removing the gold from it. This stage always benefits from a little jet dry or similar product to reduce 'floating' of the gold. But this is where some of you run into difficulty with the really, really fine 'micro' gold and this requires use of the third technique. The last technique is referred to a 'micro panning'. If you haven't become a skilled panner by this stage, you may want to consider finding one who can be bought cheap to do it for you. However, if you really want to do it yourself, you better hone those panning skills to near perfection. And here is what you do.

At this stage of the game, the riffles in a pan are going to work against you. Using a 'finishing pan' with no riffles is best now. As experienced panners know, the techniques described above are pretty standard. Micro panning is so difficult because you have to get down to the gold itself before you can really see what is there. Standard panning just moves the micro gold along with the larger heavy material. This is because the micro gold is washed away in the steps of final panning by normal methods. It is not the concentrating steps that are different, it is the reveal method of moving off that last little bit of heavy material without washing away the micro gold. Using jet dry, or a similar product, now is really critical. Micro gold is very susceptible to 'floating' at this stage. You really need clean water now in order to observe what you are doing and to be able to see the gold you are after. You will need to use a safety pan or tub because you are going to lose gold until you perfect your method and develop confidence is what you are doing.

Take a spoonful of concentrate and move it to the edge of the pan where there are no riffles and gently shake to get all the cons concentrated. Now dip the pan into the water slowly so as not to disturb the cons. Hold the pan tilted slightly down where the cons are and start tapping the side of the pan directly away from you with your strong hand. Since I am right handed, I grab the pan with my left hand at about the nine o'clock position and tap at the twelve o'clock position with my right hand. Tap for about 30 seconds or so to concentrate the gold at about the 10 or 11 o'clock position. Now, keep tapping while slowly tipping the pan down directly away from 10 o'clock down to about 4 o'clock. Don't tilt very much as it only takes a little bit past level to start the lighter material barely moving away from the 10 o'clock position and some water will pour out of the pan as you do this.

There are two things to remember now. First, keep the upper edge of the cons under the water at all times and do not tilt so much that the cons separate from the corner of the pan at the 10 o'clock position. Once you see the upper layers start to slough away, hold that tilt and keep tapping gently. When you get it right, the upper layers will move away leaving only the heaviest material in the corner of the pan. You can now tilt the pan gently and tap lightly to move those lights farther away leaving your heavies exposed. You probably won't see the gold yet but don't worry, you are just getting started. Now repeat the process with the heavies until you have very little left.

You should be able to see the gold at this point. The secret is to tap gently continually until all the heavies have moved away and the gold is pretty much all that is left. All the non-gold material should be spread out along the opposite edge of the pan and you can use a hand lens to see if there is any gold in it that you missed. If there is, you will have to repeat the process, otherwise, sniffer your fairly clean gold out and repeat the process.

Understand that this process is delicate, and I do mean very delicate. The better the panner you are, the easier this process is. Once you get the hang of it, you will be amazed at how effective and efficient it is. There is no reason why you can't get it all. The only thing holding you back is confidence in your ability. So hone those skills. You have all winter to practice, practice, practice, and then practice some more. It just depends on how serious you really want to be and how much you really want to retrieve all the gold that you have found or just get some of it and throw the rest away. Personally, I like to get it all.
