November is upon us now and that brings snow and Thanksgiving turkey/ham. I have antelope and deer meat in the freezer and all my gear has been winterized and put away. I always keep my sluice box and pan handy though because there are always some mild winter days where I can get into Clear Creek and get a little of that winter gold.

Elections will be taking place this month and we are in desperate need of a volunteer to step up and take the Secretary/Treasurer’s job. It is mostly just the Treasurer as I pretty much do all the Secretary tasks these days. I can’t stress enough how important volunteering for the betterment of your Club is. That is what keeps us going. I sincerely hope someone will step up by the November meeting so we can have a little order going forward into the 2018 season. If you are interested but a little hesitant, call me and we can talk about it.

I put an article in the newsletter about the prediction of the future of gold prices. I normally don’t do that kind of stuff but this was pretty startling so I thought I would include it for those of you who like to think about such things. Me, I try not to get caught up in too much cerebral stuff as I am older now and worrying about one thing and another is not very good for one’s mental health so I just don’t do much of it anymore. Besides, when I die I won’t really care much one way or the other. And, there is very little I can do about things that I have no control over anyway so I choose to take a less stressful path. As the words of that song goes, “I got my toes in the water and my ass in the sand, I got no worries and a cold beer in my hand, life is good today, yeah, life is good today”! I usually think of that song while I am in the creek panning a little gold.

While I was on the mountain, I got an e-mail from Randy Witham concerning Cache Creek. We all know that the BLM has been shutting us down and working on their plan to run us all off in the near future, and this after we tried to meet with them and offer suggestions and solutions to run and manage the property jointly and responsibly. But they weren’t interested as they were operating under the old Obama School of ‘Kick ’em all out and grab the land’ philosophy they were so famous for. But Randy has been trying to gather support to stop them by getting state and federal congressmen to support us. It appears he is finally getting their ear. The property is some 2000 acres and the BLM had run us off onto the worst 25 acres of the whole place with no water and nothing but trees and rocks and then passed another host of ‘regulations’ that doomed us to failure from the start. But Randy’s idea is to get the place designated as a Special Recreational Mining Area, or SRMA, a first of its kind. This would be similar to what we accomplished at the Youngfield section of Clear Creek known as ‘Arapaho Bar’.

So far, our Club as well as the Foothills Chapter of the GPAA, the GPR, the Western Slope Chapter of the GPAA, and a host of other Colorado gem and mineral clubs as well as entities such as Gold Unlimited and the Gold Cube folks are all on board and have joined Randy in writing letters to several State as well as our federal Senators and Congressman Gardner and Lamborn. Several are interested in our concept and agree that the BLM is in need of a little adjustment. They recognize the historical and cultural place of mining in Colorado history and the need to preserve and protect some of this heritage. I think people are finally getting wise to the past Administrations attitude of seizing our public lands and shutting down as much of the mining interests as they could, by hood or crook, and usually through unlawful maneuvers that circumvented the law as well as the Mining Laws of 1873.

At least one State Senator and one State Representative are talking about some legislation that would support Randy’s concept and allow the miners to have a major role in how the property would be managed in the future and to set the rules and regulations to ensure that it is managed properly for the future. That would indeed, be a major victory. I have long contended that the closure of access roads to public lands by the BLM and the USFS is discriminatory against the elderly and the handicapped that cannot access their public lands anymore. Many of these road and access closures have been under the guise of the need to establish ‘erosion control’ but that has been no more than just a scam. Those roads will still be visible and usable 200 years from now!
Anyway, that is the view from here and I wish you all Good Luck in your endeavors, no matter what they may be! And until we meet again, keep your sunny sides up and may the bottoms of your pans turn bright with that treasured ‘Yaller Gold’!

The V.P. Corner by “Joe Fortunato

Holy Cow!!! Where did 2017 go? Mary and I spent the afternoon, raking, mowing, and putting away lawn furniture. Most of this year is already behind us. I don’t know about the rest of you folks, but it went by alarmingly fast for me! So much to do, and so little spare time to do it. I really need to retire, so I can spend more time having fun. Metal detecting, prospecting, and fishing sound much better to me these days than work does. It is that time of year again, when our outdoor pursuits get a little more challenging here in Colorado. Those perfect days don’t come around as regularly as we would like, but they do still manage to materialize often enough to take the edge off during the colder months. I returned home from Nevada about ten days ago. It was a memorable trip, with a lot of different things going on during my six-day stay. I had the opportunity to detect with two of my mentors, Ken and Rick, and that is always a treat for me. I also got to spend some time with a guy that I met in Nome, Alaska in 2013, his name is Keith, he is a real gentleman and an excellent detectorist. Rich Beesley and Dan Reid from our own GPOR club came out for a few days also. We didn’t find a lot of gold, but we all found some gold, that is a major accomplishment these days. I had planned to take pictures every day, thinking that I could put together another presentation for our club in a few months. Well, I got so involved in detecting for gold, that I didn’t get as many pictures taken as I would have liked. I think that Dan and Rich took a few pictures, so I think that might just give me enough material for a presentation about our adventures in Nevada. I will run it by Pres. Long and see what he thinks about the idea. I guess that is about all that I have for this month, so until next time. MAY ALL YOUR ADVENTURES BE GOLDEN!!! A Miner’s Laugh
During an impassioned sermon about death and final judgement, the pastor said forcefully, "Each member of this church is going to die and face judgement." Glancing down at the front pew, he noticed an old miner with a big smile on his face. The minister repeated his point louder. "Each member of this church is going to die and face judgement!" The old miner nodded and smiled even more. This really got the preacher wound up. He pounded the pulpit emphatically when he came to the ultimatum: "Each member of this church is going to die and face judgement!!" Though everyone else in the congregation was looking somber, the old miner in front continued to smile. Finally, the preacher stepped off the platform, stood in front of the old man and shouted, "I said each member of this church is going to die!" The man grinned from ear to ear. After the service was over, the preacher made a beeline for the man. "I don't get it," the preacher said in frustration. "Whenever I said, 'Each member of this church is going to die,' your smile got bigger. Why?" "I'm not a member of this church," the old miner replied.

Arapahoe County Fall Festival Panning Demonstration
On October 14, the Club performed the last panning demonstration of the year at the 17 Mile House in Parker, Colorado. This demonstration is getting bigger and bigger each year and is overseen by Board member Mike Hurtado. Assisting Mike this year were Carl Adams, Jim Peterson, Gary Hawley and Roy Carden. We are always grateful for the volunteers who pitch in to help out for these events as we would not be able to do them without you folks. This particular one was pretty chilly as the wind was a little brisk on this day, which made it all that much more difficult. Mike managed to get a few photos of everyone while there.

2017 Annual Pumpkin Carving Contest
The Annual pumpkin-carving contest was held at the Wednesday Meeting. The theme is always mining related and this year we had some pretty good entries. The top 3 winners were all presented with gold nuggets for their efforts and were as follows:

- First place went to Greg and Nancy Knurl for their ‘Gold in the Pan’ entry, a 1.0 gram nugget;
- Second place went to Gary Hawley for his entry of the ‘Gold Skull Mine’ and he received a 0.7 gram nugget;
- Third place went to Dennis Perederin with his entry of the ‘Clear Creek Miner’, an effort that got him a 0.3 gram nugget. Well done folks.
Harvard Economist Warns “$700 Gold by 2018”

By Harry Dent

Investors are fleeing to gold in a desperate attempt to weather the recent market volatility… but is this long time “safe-haven” actually poised to collapse wiping out trillions of dollars of wealth in the process?

One highly respected Harvard economist is stating an emphatic “yes!” “While many economists will argue that gold is not in a bubble… and insist it will soar to $2,000, $5,000 and even $10,000, my research has said otherwise” says Harvard economist Harry Dent in his latest report. “I’ve never been more certain of anything in over 30 years of economic forecasting.”

Market volatility, worries over the Europe Central Bank, negative interest rates, and China are among a laundry list of events that are driving panicked masses to buy the yellow metal. But this is only inflating the gold bubble that is poised to pop at any moment, he says.

Harvard Economist Warns: Get Out of Gold IMMEDIATELY and Buy This Instead:

Dent, who pioneered a whole new science of economic forecasting in the early 1980’s has been able to accurately predict almost every major economic event over the past 30 years. —including the collapse of Japan, The Great Tech Boom of the 1990’s, and the 2008 market crash. Now his latest prediction his proving controversial among financial circles across the country. Traditionally investors flock to gold as a way to hedge against inflation. But according to Dent’s research, we’re about to see the exact opposite happen. Dent warns that we are about to experience an economic crisis far worse than 2008 — the full-blown collapse of the stock market and massive deflation. And that investors who attempt to hide their money in the “safe haven” of gold, could damage their wealth to an even greater degree.

How To Get Rich From Deflation:

This scenario was practically preordained — as far back as the mid-1990s when the bubble in stocks began and real estate followed and Baby Boomers were heading for their peak spending years into 2007.

“When you understand this event, including the fundamental reasons driving it, you need not panic. You will see there’s a tremendous upside to what will unfold over this decade and beyond.” Says Dent. “After all, when you’re able to know what’s coming – and position yourself accordingly – the years ahead could be prosperous times.”

What is Dent saying the one investment you need to buy right now to protect yourself, instead of gold is?

Not Even Gold Can Keep Your Money Safe When This Happens:

Dent is predicting a collapse of the housing market that will cut values in half as well as a collapse of the DOW to less than 6000 on the index. To see more of Dent’s predictions, go to dentresearch.com and see what he predicts will be the ‘safe’ investment of the future.!

(While I rarely publish any economic data concerning the predicting of markets, I found this one to be quite interesting. This guy is kind of a ‘rogue’ in the investment field and you may find it entertaining. In this age, there are so many ‘conspiracy theorists’ and other predictors of ‘doom and gloom’ that I tend to ignore most of them. But gold dropping to $700 is something else….who knows…???  JJ)

Associated Press

Metal prices have surged over the last year as China’s economy rebounds and President Trump’s election lifts prospects in the US. But investors hoping to get in on those gains face a challenge. Funds that target those commodities have struggled. Copper, which is used in large amounts in construction, power generation and manufacturing, has surged 49% in the last year. Palladium, which is used in auto catalytic converters and electronics, has risen 52% in 12 months. It hadn’t been this expensive since early 2001. “Copper carries the electric charge of development and growth”, quips Steve Wood, chief market strategist for Russell Investments. “The global growth story has improved measurably within the last year to year and a half. But investors who have sought to cash in on those gains are likely disappointed. Some funds that focus on metals have risen in value this year, but they haven’t done as well as the broader stock market. The features that protect them from price shocks may have limited their recent gains. The Gold Bullion Strategy Advisor fund, for example, has risen just 9.7% this year, according to Morningstar. Blackrock’s Commodity strategies Investor fund has only gained 3.3% as funds with less focus on precious metals have done worse. That is substantially worse that either the Industrial companies Index of the Standard & Poor’s 500 index or the S&P 500 itself, both of which are up about 13%. Brian Jacobsen, a multi-asset strategist with Wells Fargo Asset Management, said investors should consider investing in industrial companies instead. “Often, the best way to invest in commodities is through the companies that produce or use the items rather than in the items themselves,” he wrote. While those companies probably won’t provide the kind of return that copper and palladium have this year, they are also less vulnerable to sharp drops in price. Machinery maker
Caterpillar, engineered products maker Arconic and engine maker Cummins have all surged this year as investors expect demand for their products to keep growing. Exchange-traded funds focused on metals, like the SDPR Gold Trust, also have done better than many mutual funds and roughly kept pace with stocks. Norm MacDonald, vice president and portfolio manager for Invesco, said many investors have chosen to put their money into those funds instead. Wood says the gains in metals prices also reflect greater optimism about the global economy and especially China. The world’s second largest economy depends heavily on construction, industry and energy production. The rally has been especially good for emerging markets economies, he said, because they tend to rely more heavily on commodities.
